We are in the midst of a special week here at Presentation – HALO WEEK. Other colleges may call it “Homecoming Week”. But being a Catholic College, we call it HALO Week, I presume it comes from the word ‘hallowed’.

One of the songs we sang at Mass earlier this week had these words in it: “God has chosen me: – to bring good news to the poor -- to bring new sight to those searching for light ... to tell the world that God’s kingdom is near.” Those words all really speak to me. They remind me that God has a special mission for us to do in this life, perhaps for you it may be studying, teaching, or any other special activity. I know that many of our students love to play sports. I have friends that have helped me with computer skills. These are all ways that God may have chosen you to carry on His work, and bring the Lantern of Nano Nagle our foundress, to the world around us. What are the ways that you carry Nano’s Lantern in your life?

Last week I suggested to you that you might want to have a “Prayer Partner” to pray and guide you throughout this year. I’ve only gotten a few requests for this so far. Have you given it any thought? Do you want someone to pray with you occasionally? Think about it, and let me know before the end of this month.

May God help you to carry the Light of Christ to others!
