

September 30, 2021

We are nearing the end of September, and pretty soon we will be starting the month of October. Then before we realize it, we could be having snow. I am grateful that we haven't had any yet.

Within this next week we will be celebrating the feast of St. Therese, often called the Little Flower of Jesus, and the next day is the feast of the Guardian Angels. Early next week, we celebrate the feast of St. Francis of Assisi. When I was young, I was taught by the Franciscan Sisters and I thought I was going to enter their community. But when I discovered that the Franciscan community that I knew were not teaching in South Dakota any more, I was fearful that I would have to teach all my life in big cities like my older sister had been doing. Then someone told me that the Presentation Sisters had schools all over South Dakota, so that is what led me to become a Presentation Sister. God leads us in ways that we do not always understand. You might say it was a fear of big cities that led me to become a Presentation. Well, whatever it was, I became a Presentation and I have been happy here ever since.
