

December 2, 2021

We have begun the month of December, and I am aware that before too long the students will be taking final exams before their Christmas break. I will be praying for all, that you will be successful in all that you do.

Last week we had the funeral of one of our Sisters. This was the first one of our Sisters in our new place by Mother Joseph Manor. As we planned for the funeral, I was thinking about how things would be for my funeral. Of course, not every funeral would be the same, but I'm certain that I won't have to worry about things. I have planned to donate my body to science, so my body will be used to continue teaching students. Having been a teacher most of my life, I am grateful that my remains will continue to teach students even after I have died. An older sister of mine had done the same thing, and her cremated remains were buried next to one of their sisters. I have requested that my cremated remains be buried on top of my sister who had been in this community. So, when my family comes to visit our cemetery, they will find both me & my Sister buried in the same plot.

The Advent season is almost a full four weeks this year. Some years Advent is four Sundays, but only a little more than three weeks. May God bless you and have a wonderful Advent season! I will be praying for all of you.
