

January 27, 2022

Welcome back to Presentation College! I am hoping that the two weeks away from on-campus classes were a blessing in some way to all of you. I'm sure that many of you would have preferred to have classes normally, but because of Covid-19 it was decided to postpone things a bit. Perhaps you can look back and find something good from the experience.

This past week on Tuesday was the feast of the Conversation of St. Paul, the Apostle. You have probably read about how St. Paul was struck by a bright light, and he heard Jesus say to him, "Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting me?" From then on Saul was a changed man. I have never had any experience quite like that one, but there were times in my life when I have experienced something that did make a difference in what I would do. You might want to think about some of those times for yourself. What happened, and how did it change what you were about to do? Take some time to talk to God about the experience, and ask him to help you to see the good that may have come from it. Ask yourself what good may have come from the change in your plans in these past two weeks? You might have to ask God to help you to see the change.

We will soon be ending the month of January, and beginning the month of February. Perhaps you are aware that the Covid-19 pandemic is almost two years old. I recall it because one of my sisters died right before Covid started. I was lucky to be able to travel for her funeral, and I look forward to seeing all of my family again in heaven someday.

God bless all of you, and may the rest of January be a blessed one.
